The Bia Thin Treaty Organization, often referred to as 貝国公約組織 in Biathinian Imperial Speech or the "Maternal Treaty Organization" as is known among the Nordings, is a non-human and human intergovernmental military and economic alliance. It was formed by the countries of Meru, Nemet, Ketu Rahu, Mendari, Ilan Qurun, various countries of the Asatta penninsula, and the Jasha Republic. Later, Buyan, Zerrikania, Mathlum-San, and Amce-Thuti joined the treaty. This alliance was established to counter the martial threats and pressure posed by the Tuyotuki Islands and Kilan-Tal.

History

Establishment

The founder of this treaty and organization was the queen of the Meru Kingdom, known as the "Mother of Salvation" by the Weska people. She was introduced to the Nordings through a merchant from Vinland. The first opportunity to establish the treaty arose during the independence war of Ilan Qurun. When the Khan Conglomerate collapsed during what the Kilan termed the "Age of Fire," the steppes were torn apart by civil war. It was during this time that the people of Ilan Qurun declared their independence, forming a realm consisting of Kilan, Tuyotuki Islands, and some territories in the region of Bia Thin.

Upon hearing of Ilan Qurun's independence, the queen of Meru decided to create a treaty organization uniting humans and non-humans. She hoped it would help solve internal conflicts, address external threats, and allow nations to compensate for each other's weaknesses. She believed that these countries knew little about one another and feared each other.

However, the queen had another purpose. In the highlands at the border of Meru and Ketu Rahu, an urban ruin, known as the "Legend City," was rumored to contain treasures, knowledge, and ancient weapons. The queen discovered only knowledge about magic, technology, and the sinister existence of the Old Ones. She resolved to seal the Old Ones with her memory and death to prevent anyone from harnessing their power.

Assassination of the "Mother"

After ten years of preparation against the Old Ones, the queen enacted her plan. During the treaty's establishment, she had secretly asked Luri to kill her if she ever became a tyrant. To provoke Luri, she deliberately acted as a tyrant. She convened the leaders of all member nations for the first conference in ten years, intending to address the treaty's impending collapse. At the time, Ketu Rahu and the Jasha Republic were threatening to withdraw from the alliance.

The princess of Mendari participated in the congress to study diplomacy and politics. The queen of the East Sea civilization insisted on withdrawing from the treaty, stating that her people trusted only their own treasures and welfare, not other humanoids. Both the East Sea civilization and Mendari adhered to neutral and non-interference policies. Representatives from each participating country, along with their servants and diplomats, arrived at the Meru capital's palace the day before the congress. They stayed in guest rooms adjacent to the palace and introduced themselves over dinner.

The next day, the body of the queen of Meru was discovered in the Throne Room by the king of Ilan Qurun and the princess of Mendari. She was lying face down in a pool of blood, with a single wound on her back made by a sharp object. Her body showed signs of reacting to magic, but a significant amount of time had passed since the incantation.

Initially, the representatives and their servants debated the incident. During their investigation, several pieces of evidence were uncovered. The representative from Ilan Qurun recalled that the queen had been refining "some kind of medicine" for the princess of Mendari. An extremely powerful magical force was detected at the door connecting the "Bedroom" and the "Throne Room," suggesting someone had cast a spell there. The representative from Ketu Rahu found the suspected murder weapon, a short sword, near the queen's body. This sword, a traditional weapon from Ilan Qurun, was sharp and covered in blood. The queen of the East Sea civilization discovered a mysterious magic book written in Hen Llinge in the "database." This book, about "magic control," appeared to have been written by the queen herself. Nearby books were dusty but showed signs of recent use. Additionally, a small amount of blood-stained scales was found near the "well" in the basement.
